1-GEN. N. GOFF. 2-J. MARSHALL HAGANS. 3-GEN. W. H. POWELL. It is the noblest reward of great services like his that it exaits the character to this high level; that it enables a man to act nobly without appearing to be pretentious. General Grant is under a moral necessity of respecting the great renown of his past services.

The Presidency can be nothing to him; he has a more valuable office. But if, in the hands of Providence, he could be an instrument for tranquillizing the THE PLATFORM. e National Union Republican party of United States assembled in National cention in the City of Chicago on the day of May 1858, make the following be an instrained for tangular and country, that is an honor for which he could afford to sacrifice ease, congenial pursuits, and the possibilities of still greater fame as a soldier.

As Washington was elected and recleted on the strength of his character elected on the strength of his character and services, without pledge either asked or given, we trust that General Grant will be elected, if at all, in the same way and with the same gouerous confidence. Having restored the au-thority of the Government, we hope that he may add the highest civic to the highest military fame by restoring long-lost cordiality of feeling. The World now says:

The World now says:

Grant is entirely without personal magnetism or popular qualities, but a successful military career hides a multitude of defects. When he first consented to be the Republican candidate, he seemed a very formidable one. He had not then been convicted of demagogueism or duplicity, and was credited with too much sleadiness fand strength of character to be controlled by the Radicals. He has since shown by the Radicals. He has since shown by the Radicals, the thing of wax in their hands, to be modeled by them into any shape they please.

Turning to our Democratic exchanges

we find similar evidences of a "change of base," and it will be a worthy object for Republican journals in various lo calities to meet the weak and wicked hanges of their Democratic cotempo raries, by turning back to their files and reproducing the articles in which they lavished praise upon Grant, for the very qualities for the absence of which they now accuse him. As Corter burned the ships when he invaded Mexico, so the Democratic press would do well to destroy or hide their files, as they enter upon a campaign from which there is no retreat, and in which their past record will prove so damning.

The World returns to the attack, and adulges in the following reflections We suppose that none of his friends will seriously maintain that he is en-itled to be called a great general merermies, much less because he has exed and lost in battle great multi-capable.

Nothing could be more clean and complete, even in imagination, than General Grant's masterly execution.

If anybody is so obtuse or so wrongheaded as to see nothing great in Gen. Grant beyond his marvelous tenacity of will, let that doubter explain, if he can, how it has happened that since he rose to high command this quality has always been exerted in conspicuous energy precisely at the point on which everything in his whole sphere of operations hinge. There has been no displayed great qualities on small occasions; no expenditure of herculcan efforts to accomplish objects not of the first magnitude. State governments upon the basis of Impar-tial Justice and Equal Rights, are received back into the communion of the loyal peo-ple; and we favor the removal of the dis-qualifications and restrictions imposed upon the late Robekin the same measure as their spirit of loyalty will direct, and as may be consistent with the safety of the loyal people. In April, of the nominees for the positions they have been selected to fill. They are 1865, the World would "apply any test" have been selected to fill. They are two draw would apply any test well known throughout the State, and to Grant only to place him among the their election may even now be regarded as a certainty.

THE Baltimore Gazette, which represents the rebel Democratic element of Maryland, declares in favor of the nomination of Mr. Pendleton by the New York Convention, and gives the following logical reasons for its preference:

CHARLES DICKENS, on his return to England with a carpet-bag full of "American notes," found a legacy of an Englishman recently deceased. He should never see "Hard Times" with his present funds and his "Great Expectations" from future novels. When we remember how recently in praise of General Grant, it is amusing to observe their entire change of following logical reasons for its prefertone toward him as soon as he had an ence:

ing to observe their entire change of tone toward him as soon as he had an opportunity to show his sympathy with the loyal and patriotic sense of the country. This change of tone indicates the line of attack they propose to make on Grant, and prepares us for a campaign in which, on the part of our opponents, malevolence and mendacity with do their worst. We copy from the World a platform of a long article in which it lauded General Grant to the skies, and set off against it the words which partisan malignity now compels it to utter. Not long since the World said:

Of the steadiness and staunchness of General Grant's patriolism, or the uprightness and solidity of his character, no man in the country doubts, or affects to doubt.

Of the steadiness and staunchness of General Grant's patriolism, or the uprightness and solidity of his character, no man in the country doubts, or affects to doubt.

On the score of loyalty and public services no man in this country can come into competition with this illustrious soldier.

It is the noblest reward of great services. Its his high level; that it enables a man to act nobly without appearing to be pretentions. General Grant is under a moral necessity of respecting the great renown of his past services.

The Presidency can be nothing to him the has a more valuable office. But contest squarely on its principles. We do not believe that in the present criais the glitter of a soldier's sword and the waving of his plume will aid one little to its strength or its claim to popular support."

Reduced to plain English this means that Mr. Pendleton should receive the Democratic nomination because he opposed the war for the suppression of the rebellion, but not the rebellion will surely avert the approach of the most inside the sword and shears. Because he opposed exery measure taken by the Government to successfully prosecute the war, and especially the providing for issuing greenbacks wherewith to aid in defraying the cost of supporting the Union army. From his place in Congress he declared the greenback bill flagrantly unconstitutional, and stigmatized the greenbacks as being like Cain, "fugitives stitution," says the rebel organ of Maryland, and therefore the grateful Democracy should nominate him for President. Yet in this latitude his friends press his claims on the ground that he is in favor of a limitless increase of this same currency, which he pronounced unconstitutional and worthless when it was introduced as a rebels.

The Baltimore representative of the cardinal principles" of the Democratic party is at least consistent in demanding an anti-war Copperhead as its candidate for President.

MR. EDMUND COOPER, the President's private secretary, has been getting himself into deep water. When called upon by the Impeachment Committee to answer whether he knew of any corrupt means having been used to influence the votes of Senators on the im-peachment, he stated that a proposition had been made to him by a friend of Senator Pomeroy, that if $40,000 was paid by the President's friends, the agonist; but General Lee was not con-quered by fighting him, but by ex-hausting his resources.

In his last and greatest campaign he pitted an enormous army against a small one, and sacrifeed thrice as many men as General Lee had under his vote of Mr. Pomeroy would be cast command.

It is rumored that another book of the fashion of Mrs. Keckley's Behind the Scenes, will shortly be given to the public, written by a Miss Simpson, who has been connected with many of the first families in New York and Boston for years. One family has already offered a hundred dollars to the expectant anthoress not to have their names appear in the book. It is getting positively dangerous to employ educated servants, seamstresses, &c.

Henry J. Raymond, the soul of the editors of the Yale Literary Gazette, commenced to write when a very young boy, not more than eight years of sgc. When living in Saratoga he issued a weekly sheet called The Furcaide Puper, which was printed at the Times office, and circulated among his friends and acquaintances.
